Sienná Presents a Fascinating Painting of Music With I Know Why

I was introduced to Sienná through the first musical notes on the upcoming single "I Know Why", and was completely stunned. There's something elegant about the musical production at first glance. You'll hear a very melodic point, before you are lead down a line of singing and other elements that create a lavish picture. It's this ethereal relationship that comes through with vocals and sound design that is really well done. It's got a mix of pop, electronic, digital, and organic sounds that work very well here.

You really get this compelling sound and design that flows so well together. You are not going to be disappointed upon listening as it starts to become clearer through the track. By minute 2, you are enthralled, you are in love, and you can't let go. There's a symbiosis at work here, something that only the best artists can produce, and that's iconic here. It's not a noisy track, it's moody, it's eclectic, and it is definitely one of the better sounding songs I've heard in a while.

As you progress through the track, you are treated to a dual relationship of singing that connects in a very balanced manner. Through Sienná's track, "I Know Why" asks questions, talks about love, hurt, and so much more within the elements. It has ups and downs but they are done so gracefully that you are going to want to hear this over and over again. It's like the introduction to a nature video, as the way things flow are so tranquil at first glance, then they flow through jazzy, rock elements and you are thrown into a beautiful landscape.

Get a cup of tea or coffee and sit back and listen to this wonderful track. It's by far one of the most compelling singles I've heard in a long time. It's pop, electronic, jazz, rock, and so much more in a very nuanced fashion. Sienná really does well here, it's a testament to artistry and I'm recommending it wholeheartedly.
